Although Gurley was neither the inventor nor the earliest producer of solar instruments, when it finally got into the game it became a major player. The completeness of their line, the diversity of their designs, and the sheer numbers made, justify a study of Gurley's solar instruments. The Gurleys introduced three solar instruments in 1858.

HT Instruments PV-ISOTEST 1500V Solar Insulation Test and Ground Fault Locator. Photovoltaic technology is changing. The design and production of installations increasingly takes into consideration the increase in rated voltage, which allows for the realization of strings up to 30% longer, for a higher generated power and, at the same time, uses a smaller number of ...

Established in Tokyo in 1927, EKO began distributing sensors for the Japanese meteorological and environmental market. In the 50s, we launched the first Japanese-designed and built pyranometer, producing a range of solar ...

A pyranometer is an instrument that measures solar irradiance --specifically - the solar radiation flux density (in W/m²;) that is the incoming solar power reaching the Earth's surface. Back in 1924, Kipp & Zonen became the first manufacturer of pyranometers. Today, OTT HydroMet proudly carries on the tradition of spectrally flat, incredibly ...

Solar Instruments. Pyranometers. Pyranometers are radiometers designed for measuring the irradiance on a plane surface, normally from solar radiation and lamps. Read more. Pyrgeometers. Pyrgeometers are designed for IR (infrared) radiation measurement, for both atmospheric and material testing research applications.

The HT Instruments I-V600 is an advanced multifunction instrument for I-V curve measurements up to 1500V and 40A. It is equipped with a user updatable database of modules allowing the measured data to be compared to the nominal values as provided by the manufacturer of the module/string under test to return a clear OK/NOT OK response.
