Linear drains can work great with barrier-free, curbless showers. But just like the smaller center drains, linear drains come in two types. You want to make sure you get a drain that works with a sealed shower system. A linear drain that's compatible with a 3-piece clamping ring drain isn't going to cut it for a curbless shower.

One of the most effective and least invasive methods of waterproofing a basement is with a baseboard system, such as Basement Systems' DryTrak. With this system, weep holes are drilled into the floor/wall joint or, in the case of a block wall, into the walls themselves. Once this is done, a hollow vinyl baseboard is epoxied to the floor.
